To my Heavenly Father. Thank you for this gift. Thank you for the vision, and the courage it took for me to step out on faith and do what you called me to do. I trust your plan and your ability to see me through. I love you with all that is within me. There is nobody greater than you.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This book is dedicated to my grandparents, John and Marie Cherry. There is not a day that goes by that I don't think about you. To Cynthia Rosario...thank you for being my first biggest fan. May you all rest in peace.

To my mother you have always been the best example of what a strong woman looks and acts like. You taught me that I can do and be anything I put my mind to. Thank you for never giving up on me. I am so proud to be a part of you. To my sister, the rest of my family and friends, I love and thank God for you. It is all of you who keep me on track and focused.

To my readers, there is no me without you. Thank you for supporting my dream and giving me the opportunity for my voice to be heard. I appreciate you more than you will ever know.

PROLOGUE

All the breath left Mina's body when she opened her bedroom door. She faced a woman's worst nightmare, and disbelief froze her in her tracks. Even if she could move, she knew turning around or walking away would not solve the problem, she couldn't budge. It was as if her feet were cemented to the plush carpet as pure shock held her in one spot for five minutes. How could this fool not hear the freaking door open? she thought as her mind flashed back to previous years, three to be exact. She'd spent three years supporting a lazy bastard who had refused to work, claiming it would only make the white man rich. Thirty-six months had gone to defending his sorry ass for being a no good, leaching, imitation of a real man, who was perfectly fine watching his woman work her fingers to the bone while he did nothing but reap the benefits of her labor. She had been his fool and believed he was the one for her, while her girlfriends criticized and ridiculed the man she loved. Now, three years had come down to this, and all she could think of were the charges she was certain she would be facing soon. Manslaughter? First-degree murder? Premeditated murder? It would be one of those because she damn sure was going to kill this fool. Maybe the judge would be lenient considering she would be a first time offender, she thought.

CHERRY

Mina blinked twice to snap out of her daze. She gently backed out of the room, keeping as quiet as she could so her presence remained unknown. She silently ran to the hall closet, eased it opened and reached up top. She grabbed the shoebox and pulled out the purple Crown Royal bag that housed her .380 pistol. Slowly, she walked back to the room, and watched a second longer as she stood in the doorway.

The cocking sound of the .380 didn't even stop his stroke.

"Do it, baby. Work that shit," the skinny slut moaned from Mina's side of the king size bed. Kevin had her bent over, and she hollered like his dick was about to come out of her throat.

Who in the hell is this woman fooling? Mina thought. Mina definitely hadn't chosen her relationship with Kevin because of the size of his dick or its worth. At best, Kevin was all of six inches and no thicker than a carrot.

"Whose is it, baby girl?" Kevin's dominating voice asked, filled with passion.

That was the last Mina's heart could bear. With the .380 pointed toward the heavens, Mina prayed to the only God she had ever known to please grant her the serenity to accept the things that she could not change. Faced with betrayal, she closed her eyes and squeezed the trigger. The sound of the shot rang throughout the house. She heard the bullet rip through pillows, then pierce the headboard. Finally, it lodged in the yellow wall. Tears flowed down her face like hot lava, and she opened her eyes. Feathers were flying everywhere, and a scared Kevin jumped out of the pussy like it was on fire. He'd turned around so quickly, Mina was sure he was going to have whiplash.

"Mine!" Mina screamed. "You asked her whose is it. Right, Kevin? Well, it's mine," she repeated, still crying elephant sized tears. The chick scrambled under the bed, apparently terrified. "It's all mine, you back stabbing son of a bitch. This is my house. My damn bed. All of this is my shit, and you have the audacity to bring this bitch, any bitch up in here? Why Kevin? How could you?"

A LITTLE BIT OF TAIL

Why would you do this to me?" Mina cried out in pain, her entire body shaking. She was beyond the point of control.

Kevin parted his thick, slightly pink lips that contrasted with his dark ebony skin, and then whimpered, "Baby."

POW! Mina fired another shot in the air causing speckles of drywall to rain down from the ceiling.

Kevin pleaded, "Please, baby. Baby, please let me explain." His whimpering cry sounded more like a puppy, whose foot was being stepped on. That whimper was the only thing delaying the cursing out Mina was about to deliver, and the third bullet that had his name written all over it.

Before Mina could respond, the slut that he'd had bent over her bed had found the courage to speak. "I'm so sorry. I didn't know. Oh my God, I didn't know. Please don't kill me, lady. I have my whole life ahead of me with so much to do. The prom's next week. I'm going to college this fall. Oh God, I don't want to die. I'm only seventeen-years-old, please don't kill me."

Mina couldn't believe this shit. She tried to shake the fainting feeling that was beginning to take over her body, but she just couldn't rid the urge to pass out. This mofo brought an underage girl into my house? Without ever breaking her gaze from the eyes of the man who'd just ripped out her heart, Mina managed to utter the words, "Get your clothes and get the hell out before I change my mind, lil girl."

With the .380 now aimed at Kevin's dick, Mina noticed his knees were beginning to buckle. For the first time in a long time, he was speechless. Mina took a real good look at the little girl who possessed all the young features of a teenager. Mina coughed the word, "Seventeen." The slightest bit of laughter rumbled in her throat. "Seven freaking teen? You have got to be teasing me." She looked at Kevin with eyes as evil as the devil as she proceeded to chastise him. "Yo nasty...grown, thirty-two-year-old Chester the Childhood Molesterin' ass is up in my house, fuckin' a seventeen-year-old?!?" Mina paused, and without turning her head in the jailbait's direction she spoke through gritted teeth, "I didn't say put your clothes on. I said get your clothes and get the fuck out of my house. Now!"

Without another word, little Ms. "Girl" scooped all her clothes to her chest, jumped to her feet, and sprinted out the door like a thief in the night. She was a thief, and she had officially run off with the three-year relationship Mina had invested way too much in. A relationship that Mina knew, deep down inside, had died two years ago.

The slam of the door snapped Mina back to reality. That's when she noticed how terrified Kevin was. The fear in his eyes brought a smile to her face. It absolutely tickled her to know he was scared. He very well had a right to be. He'd just crossed the right one. Her heart was telling her that after today his mom would be in need of a new black dress and some peace lilies from a local florist.

Mina dropped her right arm to her side; the barrel of the pistol now pointed to the floor. A look of relief crept onto Kevin's face. Mina broke out in laughter. This mofo thinks he has a reason to relax.

"Baby, please believe me. I am so sorry. I love you. I never meant to hurt you. It's just you've been working so late. I promise I didn't know she was only seventeen," Kevin pleaded, killing any chance he had to relax.

Mina blinked three times to allow the last part of what had just come out of Kevin's mouth to play back. He didn't know she was only seventeen? That was the straw that broke the camel's back. The last little bit of self-control she possessed was gone. It had seeped right out of her ass like diarrhea. Her vision faded to bloodshot-red and she snapped.

Before she could put the safety on or control her forward swing, it was over. Whatever was meant to be would be, and it was going down right now. The gun met the left side of Kevin's face with so much force, it caused him to holler out in excruciating pain. It was the back hand Serena Williams' Wimbledon Championship-like swing that caused the blood to spray all over the place. Kevin never said a word; he merely cried like a punk ass bitch. A look of regret sunk into his face, but it was too late. The mofo had flat out blatantly disrespected Mina. She had worked too hard for her shit, and had come too far to just turn the other cheek. No, this negro has to learn, she thought. And to experience this ass whooping will be his best teacher ever. The third swing of the gun kissed Kevin's face and sent him to his knees. But Mina was determined to make him fall. With his birthday suit on, Mina kicked Kevin in his stomach so hard his chest caved in. She clinched the handle of the gun and continued to deliver swift forceful blows. The pistol had struck Kevin's face a total of six times before his body submitted to the almost deadly beating. His knees crumpled as his upper body hit the floor headfirst. Mina looked at Kevin, who was no longer recognizable. His eyes were swollen shut, his nose had tripled in size, and his bottom lip had literally split in two.

Before passing out, Kevin managed to moan, "Oh God, please help me."

Mina screamed, "Help? Oh, you want help... Negro, I got your help!" She kicked him again. Mina rushed out of the bedroom, down the narrow hallway and busted into the guest bathroom, almost knocking the door off its hinges. She slung open the cherry cabinet doors and grabbed the rubbing alcohol. I got your help right here, baby. Mama's going to get you all cleaned up. She hurried back to the bedroom, and was standing over Kevin's body before she knew it. She looked down at him in disgust. "I can't believe I loved you. You've wasted so many years of my life. Why didn't you love me?" Without remorse, Mina kicked Kevin in the back, and he curled into a fetal position. "Answer me, damnit!" she screamed at the top of her lungs.

Infuriated by the silence Mina unscrewed the cap off the rubbing alcohol. She looked at the open wounds that appeared to need stitches, and, without a second thought, poured the entire bottle of alcohol on Kevin's face. The open cuts and wounds turned white as snow and made the flesh of his skin look like an Alka Seltzer bubbling in warm water. The mere sight of it caused Mina to grimace, imagining the pain. Kevin didn't even scream. Instead his body began to convulse out of control as if he were having a seizure, then all of a sudden everything went limp.

For the first time Mina became scared. She couldn't help but think, Please don't be dead. I didn't really want to kill you, I just wanted you to feel as much pain as I do. Please don't be dead. Mina poked Kevin's broad shoulder, but nothing moved. He didn't even flinch. She flipped him onto his back and put her ear to his nose, but heard nothing. A short rise and fall of his chest stopped her from panicking. The only thing she could think was, Thank God he's still alive.

Mina scrambled around to Kevin's feet, bent down, and grabbed him by the ankles. She tried to pull him to the door. He didn't budge. She just couldn't move the dead weight. Without a second thought, Mina raced down the hall, and missed the first four steps on her way downstairs. The heel of her right foot hit the fifth step wrong, and she landed on her back against the dark stained hardwood floors. Feeling no pain, she jumped up and rushed past the formal living room she'd turned into an office space, then flew past the formal dining room, making her way into the eat in kitchen. She bounded to the glass table to retrieve her black Kate Spade purse.

"Thank you, Jesus" Mina sighed, taking her phone from the purse, then dialing the only best friend she had ever known. For the life of her, she couldn't figure out what was taking Jasmine, or Jazzi as only she could call her, so long to answer the phone? Jazzi just has to be home.

The two of them had just left from a planned day of hooky from work. They had just gone to breakfast and done a little shopping. The movies was also on their list, but Jazzi had to go home because she was convinced she'd forgotten to set her house alarm. That's how Kevin's ass had just gotten busted, because of a damn alarm.

A LITTLE BIT OF TAIL

Oh it was ringing all right, but at Mina's house, not Jazzi's.

Mina slipped into deeper thoughts as the phone rang in her ear. He thought I was at work. He had no idea I was coming home. I wonder how many times he's fucked in my bed or, better yet, how many different hoes? It's four other bedrooms and a damn loft in this house, and he had to have that tramp on my bed?

"Hey girl I'm coming. I know I'm slow. I'll be in the car, and then outside your door in five minutes," the chipper tone of Jazzi's voice broke Mina's concentration.

Mina interrupted Jazzi before she had the chance to continue, "Jazzi! Jazzi!" she yelled. "I need you to come over here right now. I need your help."

Jazzi interrupted before Mina could finish. "You need my help? With what? Tell me now because I ain't coming over there on no dummy mission. You know how you do."

With tears in her voice, Mina pleaded, "Please, Jazzi. I need your help."

Jasmine heard the pain and desperation in the voice of the woman she'd known since childhood, and that was all she needed. The phone went dead and the doorbell was ringing before long.

Mina rushed to the door. She took a deep breath, put a smile on her face, grabbed the gold door handle and swung open the wooden door. "I'm so glad you live right across the street. Thank you so much for coming over. Hey girl!"

Jazzi's eyeballs almost popped out of their sockets, her lids were stretched so wide. With an opened mouth, Jazzi mocked. "'Hey girl?' What the fuck you mean, 'hey girl?'" Jazzi snapped, pushing her way through the door and into the foyer. She didn't miss a beat "You standing here covered in blood from head to toe, and you answer the door with some damn, 'hey girl'? What the hell is going on in here, Mina? Are you hurt, where did all this blood come from?" Mina stood in silence with a blank stare on her face. Jazzi screamed, "Mina what the hell happened?!"

Mina did a 360 degree about-face like the cadence was just called from a drill sergeant, she stood on the first of sixteen steps and said, "Follow me."

Mina led the way to the yellow master bedroom that once made Jazzi feel happy. The blood all over the place brought Jazzi's feet to an abrupt stop. She just stood there. Her mouth was opened wide as she stared at the naked body that looked as limp as the visible dick on the floor. Jazzi took two more steps toward the body, then looked at Mina. "Mina, what's going on honey?" Jazzi didn't bother asking who was lying on the floor. Though the man's face was beaten beyond recognition, she'd know those diamond earrings anywhere. They were the same ones she'd told Mina's ass not to buy a year and a half ago. Jazzi wasn't stupid. She knew Kevin's ass wasn't hitting on shit. But she made a vow to herself two and half years ago to ease up with the insults about her best friend's man. She realized she could preach until she was blue in the face. Mina would have to see that Kevin wasn't shit for herself, and, apparently, today was the day the blindfold came off. The day they decided to ditch work like they were in high school, Mina had finally seen the light.

Mina's voice snapped Jazzi out of her daze. "I need you to help me get him downstairs. I can't do it by myself."

Jazzi didn't bother to ask what happened. She knew she'd get all the details in due time. Now wasn't the time for one hundred and one questions anyway. For now she knew her role and she would play it well. She'd be the ride or die homegirl that she had always been to Mina.

Jazzi shook her head from side to side, bent down on her tiptoes, grabbed Kevin's ankles, then said, "Well push bitch, 'cause I'm pulling! And what we supposed to do when we get him downstairs?"

Mina bent right above Kevin's shoulders and stared at his limp dick. It brought all her anger back as she remembered seeing it inside another woman. No. Worse, she remembered seeing it inside a teenaged girl, in her house. "I'm going to call his brother and tell him he needs to come and pick Kevin up. He'll be waiting on the porch," Mina answered in a low voice.

Jazzi dropped Kevin's feet and gasped in disbelief. "Bitch is you crazy! Do you see this negro? You can't even recognize him. What did you do? If his chest wasn't rising and falling, I would've thought he was dead."

Mina looked at Kevin. He was fucked up. She never meant to hurt him this badly even though his ass was dead wrong and deserved it. He would definitely need medical attention, and there was no telling the amount of damage she had done. The alcohol was just Mina's way of throwing salt in the wound. It was her way of leaving him with a little something to remember her by.

"I didn't do nothing to him. The gun did it," Mina answered, showing the first signs of remorse.

Jazzi arched her right eyebrow in disbelief. "The gun? The gun?" she screamed. "Mina, you pistol whipped this negro? What the fuck? Oh Bitch, you going to jail! And you talking about calling his damn brother? He gon' be the one to send you."

That was the best news Mina had heard all day. It was confirmation that even with all the mess she was going through, everything was going to be okay. She knew with a strong support system like the one she had with Jazzi, she could overcome this. With satisfaction in her heart, Mina knew she'd dealt her fair hand of revenge. Even though her heart was shattered in a million pieces, she had just saved the next woman from a mutual feeling. Mina was confident in knowing that though Kevin's sorry ass had scorned her, it would be a cold day in hell before he would try it again. He would most definitely think twice. Mina let out a little chuckle, then responded, "I'm not going to jail."

Jazzi stared at Mina with confusion all over her face. "How do you figure that? Are you looking at this, do you see him, Mina? You need to add a vision plan to your insurance, because this clearly has assault with a deadly weapon written all over it!"

Mina continued to talk after being so rudely interrupted. "After

CHERRY

I tell his brother to come pick him up, I'll let him know we had a little misunderstanding and things got a little out of control. If they choose to bring charges against me, I'll be more than happy to counter with charges of my own for the statutory rape of the seventeen-year-old little girl he had bent over my damn bed."

Jazzi took a second to process what Mina had just said. In full laughter, she looked at Kevin, hit his foot, and screamed out, "I ain't never liked ya ass anyway!" Simultaneously the girls fell out with laughter. Then with a straight face and a sudden seriousness, from out of nowhere, she said, "Well honey, all I have to say is get some trash bags to put him on because I refuse to let him mess up this eight thousand dollar beige carpet any more than he already has. This isn't even my house, and I'm getting pissed because he has caused enough damage for a lifetime."

Mina just continued to laugh. "Good idea." That's why she loved Jazzi. After all, what were best friends for? Their jobs were to listen, give the best advice, be on top of their shit and, sometimes, yours too. Best friends didn't let each other slip.

Mina ran back down the stairs and went straight to the kitchen sink. She got the duct tape and the trash bags, then rushed to the bedroom. When she walked through the door, she was shocked to see Jazzi laughing so hard tears were rolling down her cheeks. "What is so funny, Jazzi?"

Literally crying, Jazzi answered, "I've always hated him. I told you from day one, any man that'll sit in the house more than the damn furniture and watch you bring home the bacon and fry it in the pan, either needs to be at home with his damn mama, or at a homeless shelter. Personally, I think you should've taken him to the shelter two years ago. While I admire your loyalty, it can't always be a reason to stay, especially when you know it's not right or meant to be. But you handled his ass, and I'm so proud of you. One...for opening your eyes and being able to accept it, and two...for fucking his ass up. Now, on the count of three, you push I pull. One...two...three."
